DEMOCRATS LOSING HOPE

Trading in Desperate Effort to Save State Candidates in Michigan Is Reported; Illinois Claimed by Much as 250,000; Others 100,000.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The political situation in the Middle West, now settled into its final form, indicates that one need not even mention them, according to John Adams, vice chairman of the Republican National committee, in charge of Western headquarters, who today gave out the following review of campaign conditions: "Minnesota will go for Harding" by a very large majority, above 100,000.

"In Nebraska the Democratic organization is momentum. A Republican majority will be at least 50,000."

"In Iowa Harding and Coolidge will win by over 100,000."

"In Wisconsin the certainty of an enormous majority for Harding has taken the life out of the campaign. In Illinois, the Harding and Coolidge majority is problematical. It may be around 250,000."

"Indiana is expected by the closest figures to go for Harding by 55,000 or 60,000."

"In Michigan Harding is safe and sure by a majority of more than 100,000. The National Democratic ticket has been given up as hopeless and Mr. Cox is being traded for state candidates."

MARION, Oct. 27.—The League of Nations, tariff protection, Americanism and constitutional government are expected to be headliners among the issues discussed by Senator Harding on his final campaign through Ohio beginning today and ending Saturday night with speeches in Columbus. In addition the Republican candidate will sum up for the voters of his own state the detailed platform which he has laid down during the campaign in which he is working for national Republican victory.

NACE FAMILY SAILS SATURDAY FOR JAPAN, LETTER HOME SAYS

Former Local Reformed Minister and Wife Will Enter the Missionary Field.

By this time Rev. and Mrs. L. G. Nace and their baby are at San Francisco, awaiting transportation to Japan where Rev. and Mrs. Nace will serve as missionaries for the Reformed church. A letter to the Courier, written October 22 on board their train, reads:

"We are glad to report to our friends in Connellsville that we are at last on our way across the continent. We left Chicago this morning, crossed Illinois and the Mississippi River and are now rolling across the state of Iowa. We spent the greater part of the day on the rear end of the observation car, from which place we had a beautiful view of vast stretches of rolling farm land, acres and acres of corn fields, in which they seem to pasture hogs, sheep and cattle at the same time."

"The sunset across the plain impressed itself deeply upon us because of the many beautiful colors, which seemed to change every three or four minutes."

"Since we had our evening meal we have been in our compartment. Mrs. Nace has been knitting. Baby Nace is sitting along side of me as I am writing and making strenuous efforts to eat the sleeve of my shirt, which is a desperate thing to do in these high-priced times. I am trying to "pound" the typewriter as best I can on a fast moving train. We hope for a good night's rest, and if all goes well we shall wake up in the morning somewhere in Nebraska."

"Our train is due to arrive in San Francisco Monday afternoon. From there we sail on the S. S. China for Yokohama via the Hawaiian Islands, Saturday, October 30."

The water which ran down the street gutters was black; everything having acquired a coat of dirt during the dry period. Fall weather is predicted for tomorrow with lower temperatures.

STRIKE AGREEMENT NEAR

Every Prospect of Settlement of Trouble in Great Britain by Night

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A jury of 10 men, after 12 minutes of deliberation, this morning returned an open verdict at the inquest over the body of Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork who died in Brixton prison Monday from the result of his 73-day hunger strike.

The verdict was that the deceased had died from heart failure due to a dilated heart and acute delirium following scurvy which was due to exhaustion from prolonged refusal to take food.

Mrs. MacSwiney, dressed in black and heavily veiled, was the only witness on behalf of the MacSwiney family and was the dominant figure of the proceedings. Her composure was indicated by her quick and pointed replies. Mrs. MacSwiney successfully resisted the continued attempts of the coroner to have her characterize her husband's occupation otherwise than as "a volunteer officer of the first republican army."

CORK, Oct. 27.—At the Cork city hall there was posted today the following notice:

"The second republican lord mayor of Cork has, as his predecessor, by the British government, Cork is in mourning. Citizens or any section of them will take only authorized action. Orders will be issued by proper authority."

2,250 HAITIANS SLAIN

Error in Addition Leads to Announcement of a Larger Number.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Nails killed in Haiti during the five years of American occupation numbered 2,250 instead of 3,350, as previously announced by the Navy Department. This was disclosed at the opening public session today at the naval court of inquiry recently appointed by Secretary Daniels to investigate the conduct of the Marines on the island.

Brigadier General Barnett, former commander of the Marine Corps, testified that a mistake in addition had led to the erroneous announcement. Major E. B. McClellan, attached to the same record office of the corps, testified that only a very few of the natives killed had not fallen in action with the Marines or the gendarmes.

REPUBLICAN PARTY STANDS ON FOUNDATION OF CONSTITUTION, DEMOCRATS HAVE STEPPED OFF

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Republicans party "walks the high road to power," and "goes well" understood by the people, that there can be no doubt of the verdict, which the voters will give on November 2. These issues may be condemned and in the minds of most Americans have been condemned, into one. That is, the question whether our government shall or shall not be a constitutional government, a government of laws and not of men.

"The Republican party," the candidate asserted, "stands upon the foundation of our American constitution.

The thousand.

Day after day the unusual is being done at this store. We have made up our minds to meet the public's demand for lower prices by getting busy in the market and buying merchandise at a price to sell at a price and sacrifice our profits. Low prices are not something new here. It's been the rule—not the exception—for taking only small profits and making advantageous purchases. Competition will show we are head-quarters for

WEDNESDAY EVENG., OCT. 27, 1920.

STERLING'S "RECORD" AND KENDALL'S VOTE.

We do not care how very much disconcerted not a day downhearted contemporary or intentional deception notwithstanding its effort as organ of the Bitteroots that art as applied to politics but the interests of that demand that we direct attention to its appearance in the columns yesterday.

While difficult and profuse this eusing the topic Sterling's Record is in his vote the basis of the argument used in elucidation was the statement that Mr. Sterling voted for the Volstead Act and helped make the country dry.

Instinctively the Volstead Act was passed by both Congress. In this Mr. Kendall and Mr. Sterling represented the 23rd District. We feel as evident ourselfs intended but sometimes misunderstanding consequences will make the necessary correction and accord to Mr. Kendall the credit due him for an achievement wrongly ascribed to Mr. Steward.

Incidentally it might meet that as a member of the 65th Congress Mr.
Sterling voted for the Prohibition Amendment, provided that in further explanation of Sterling's Record it is published in parallel column the text of the pledge Mr. Sterling has made to resist any and every attempt to put through a revision of the Volstead Act alone less stringent than should be elected to the 67th Congress.

WILL VOTE AGAINST MR. STERLING IN
MAKING CONGRESS 67TH?

The answer is made. Dist. At't. Attorney N. A. Cort of Fayette County claims that he is a brewer interests
and contributing to a fund to promote the candidacies of John H.
Wilson of the Westmoreland Butler
and Duquesne Steel in the Fayette and Greene districts may have been induced to accept the nomination of Mr. Sterling and the position of that they are bona fide and dependable supporters of prohibition
and against any liberalization
of the Volstead Act.

To those familiar with Democratic practices in the two districts and the political history and antecedents of the candidates its reliefs to the liquor traffic is no surprise.

To the discerning I'd well posted politically, you also to the friends of Prohibition you have been less intimate with political politics. It is natural confirmation of the fact that these candidates are pledged to the liquor interests, in event of their election
to Congress, to support any measure that may be proposed for a lib-eralization of the Volstead Act, such as an increase in the permissible alcoholic content of beverages, the manufacture of light wines and beer, or by other provisions the effect of which would be a virtual annulment of the 18th Amendment.

But the feature of Attorney Cort's recitals exposure which should command the attention of every law-abiding citizen never arrangement of "authorities" who hold office by virtue of Balice Sterling's selection of "influence" in enforcing the provisions of the Volstead Act

in the 23rd Internal Revenue District Asserting that "every drop of liquor
has been 'milked' from all but one distillery in Fayette county and that no prosecution has been made by any branch of the federal government in interested." he expressed the belief that "none of this stolen liquor would be used on election day for the Democratic party."

In his official capacity District Attorney Cort has found it utterly idle to secure action by or cooperation from these authorities in the matter of securing prosecution of offenders against the federal laws relating to the enforcement of Prohibition.

With an indifference which has been so flagrant as to suggest a determined purpose to protect instead of
to prosecute offenders the authorities
of the district have persistently failed to make any significant or well intentioned effort to prevent what has become one of the most deplorable situations ever known to exist in any section of the state.

With a boldness never exceeded by
the most notorious highwaymen of
the most days in the wild and wooly west, bands have been made upon the bonded warehouses and thousands and thousands of gallons of liquor
"stolen" later to find its way to the storage rooms of favored hotel proprietors, illicit booze joints or cached
at convenient points for systematic distribution upon or before election day until today there is more liquor within obtainable reach by the public

such as in Fayette and Westmoreland counties than in the
palme days under the license system" and nothing has been done, nothing is being done, by the authorities of Sterling to prevent the widespread, prodigal and lawless distribution of liquor.

District Attorney Cort has told why these conditions have been permitted to prevail. It is to foster and sus-tain the political dynasty in Western Pennsylvania of Sterling, Lewellyn
Giffey and Congressman Wilson.

These with Mr. Cort further declares bear a distinct relationship to the national administration. Stating the Democratic state chairman and candidate for Congress in the
Fayette County district Lewellyn
Giffey, national Democratic committeeman
of the state of Pennsylvania and Congressman Wilson close to the administration, that any demand from it affecting his own district and Western Pennsylvania can be obtained.

Are you willing, Mrs. Voter, to assist in perpetuating a combination which seeks to debauch the male electorate
in order that a "wet" congress may make it possible to extend to the whole United States by authority of an amended Volstead Act what, under the existing care of the "political dynasty" of the 23rd Internal Revenue District, has become to be a virtual annulment of the 18th Amendment?

an amended Volstead Act what, under
the existing care of the "political dynasty" of the 23rd Internal Revenue
District, has become to be a virtual annulment of the 18th Amendment?

You will not answer it right if you give your support and vote to those candidates who are known to be in favor of a revision of the Volstead Act—which is the position of both of both Mr. Sterling and Mr.
Wilson.

Sterling's Record is a mixture of his past record and his present actions blend with his present activities and private life.

The Fayette County Democratic Party is abiding under the domination of a judicial examination in progress

There was a wise recognition to appoint a disaster committee of the Rep. Giffey and Wilson to be in readiness in case the debate of votes descended upon the Democratic Party.

At a recent meeting when the Democratic Party in contact with this county and district did they offer their consent to Giffey's complimentary votes to Republican candidates. Why old Republicans can do this. For no reason other than to help their Democrats.

A striking note like a straight shot in the ret of course.

A compact majority not for a Democrat it is no compliment to a Republican party.

In the Land of Experts,
H. H. Giffey, Westmoreland
Butler and Duquesne Steel in the Fayette and Greene districts may have
been induced to accept the nomination
of Mr. Sterling and the position of that they are bona fide and
dependable supporters of prohibition
and against any liberalization
of the Volstead Act.

MAKING CONGRESS 67TH?

The answer is made. Dist. At't. Attorney N. A. Cort of Fayette County
claims that he is a brewer interests
and contributing to a fund to promote the candidacies of John H.
Wilson of the Westmoreland Butler
and Duquesne Steel in the Fayette
and Greene districts may have
been induced to accept the nomination
of Mr. Sterling and the position of that they are bona fide and
dependable supporters of prohibition
and against any liberalization
of the Volstead Act.

To the discerning I'd well posted
politically, you also to the friends of Prohibition you have been less intimate with political politics. It is natural confirmation of the fact that
these candidates are pledged to the
liquor interests, in event of their election
to Congress, to support any measure
that may be proposed for a lib-eralization of the Volstead Act, such
as an increase in the permissible alcoholic content of beverages, the manufacture of light wines and beer, or by
other provisions the effect of which would be a virtual annulment of
the 18th Amendment.

But the feature of Attorney Cort's recitals exposure which should
command the attention of every law-
abiding citizen never arrangement
of "authorities" who hold office by virtue of Balice Sterling's
selection of "influence" in enforcing
the provisions of the Volstead Act

in the 23rd Internal Revenue District
Asserting that "every drop of liquor
has been 'milked' from all but one distillery in Fayette county and that
branch of the federal government in
interested." he expressed the belief
that "none of this stolen liquor
would be used on election day for the Democratic party."

In his official capacity District Attorney Cort has found it utterly
idle to secure action by or cooperation
from these authorities in the matter of securing prosecution of offenders against the federal laws relating to the enforcement of Prohibition.

With an indifference which has been so flagrant as to suggest a determined purpose to protect instead of
to prosecute offenders the authorities
of the district have persistently failed
to make any significant or well intentioned effort to prevent what has become one of the most deplorable situations ever known to exist in any section of the state.

With a boldness never exceeded by
the most notorious highwaymen of
the most days in the wild and wooly west,
bands have been made upon the
bonded warehouses and thousands
and thousands of gallons of liquor
"stolen" later to find its way to the
storage rooms of favored hotel proprietors, illicit booze joints or cached
at convenient points for systematic
distribution upon or before election
day until today there is more liquor

such as in Fayette and Westmoreland counties than in the
palme days under the license system" and nothing has been done, nothing
is being done, by the authorities
of Sterling to prevent the wide-
spread, prodigal and lawless distribution of liquor.

District Attorney Cort has told why
these conditions have been permitted to prevail. It is to foster and sus-tain the political dynasty in Western Pennsylvania of Sterling, Lewellyn
Giffey and Congressman Wilson.

These with Mr. Cort further declares bear a distinct relationship
to the national administration. Stating
the Democratic state chairman and
candidate for Congress in the
Fayette County district Lewellyn
Giffey, national Democratic committeeman
of the state of Pennsylvania and Congressman Wilson close to the administration, that any demand from it
affecting his own district and Western Pennsylvania can be obtained.

Are you willing, Mrs. Voter, to assist in perpetuating a combination which
seeks to debauch the male electorate
in order that a "wet" congress may
make it possible to extend to the whole United States by authority of
an amended Volstead Act what, under
the existing care of the "political dynasty" of the 23rd Internal Revenue

annulment of the 18th Amendment?

OPINIONS OF MEN AND WOMEN SHOW A DECIDED VARIANCE AS TO IMPORTANCE OF JUNK.

"Junk is that pile of old clothes my husband doesn't wear and won't let me give away. Says some day he will wear it on a fishing trip. That pile of magazines he is saving till he finds time to read them." Junk; that collection of pipes? "No never smoked it." Junk. Oh, if you want to know what junk is ask any married woman. She knows."

Ask a man.
"Junk? Well, I don't know what way to define the word than to give an example. My wife has chests and bureau drawers filled with table cloths and remnants of calico, lace and all that sort of stuff which she never uses. That's junk. She has all her old hats in that large box on top of the closet shelf. That's junk. We are only two in family, but she has enough dishes to serve twenty people and enough pots and pans to cook for forty. That's junk." Oh, I should say oftentimes that junk is the accumulation of things around a house for which a woman has no immediate use and may never use. That's a pretty good definition of the word. Ask any man. Hell tell you the same. What do you think is junk?—New York Evening Sun.

Woman's Beauty No Secret.

It all lies in the care she bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ill's peculiar to her sex. The flashing eyes, the elastic step and the clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. The distressed expression, lassitude, headaches and melancholic depression are only the tell-tale symptoms. Women so troubled should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that simple remedy made from roots and herbs, and restore their health to a normal condition. —Adv.

New Gland Tonic Not From Monkeys

Surgical Operations Not the Only Way to Transfer Strength of Animals to Human Beings.

A sufficient number of cases are on record now so as to leave little question of the value of surgical operations in which monkey glands are transferred to human beings.

During the past few months this product has come to quite general use in the treatment of tuberculosis where extracts of a general nature have been given publicly. In fact, druggists report that they have never seen a tonic adopted by so many run-down men and women in a series of increased health and strength.

So confident are the laboratories of the merits of Gland Compound that the druggists are authorized to reduce the full purchase price should anyone fail to find satisfactory benefit after two weeks.

Note.—$1,000 will be paid by the Gland Company to anyone proving the value of Gland Compound, either in genuine delicate gland substance (popularly known as Gland Extract), from sheep and cattle. Paid also by the Gland Company, $125.00 for each person struck down by gland disease everywhere.—Adv.

THE ELECTRIC STOVE

THE electric stove is a successful device which prevents the housewife from being overcome by the heat and baked to the dust, reddish brown as red as the Arapahoe squash. A woman can stand in front of an electric stove all day and run it with one hand while bending up a sponge cake with the other, and still remain as cool and collected as a refrigerator car. In fact, the only person who is liable to become overheated when he looks at one of these stoves is a husband who has just figured the meter rate with a pencil stub and a sinking heart.

Man cannot realize what the introduction of the electric stove means to woman, because he has never stood in front of a soft-coal range for eight hours in succession, trying vainly enough food to keep a family of eight children from eating the upholstering off of a hair sofa. The old-fashioned cook stove, with sloping legs and concave stomach, has caused thousands of women to regret having given up teaching country school, and entering upon matrimony, with one eye closed. Nobody has ever determined the number of heat units thrown off by one of these stoves on a peaceful summer day when the air is vibrant with the melody of birds and the thermometer is running around the track; with its tongue out. "We do know, however, that many a man has come home at noon, only to be greeted by a wife with straight hair and a carnation complexion, who turns the over-ripe tomato, all due to a steel range which was not content with trying to cook what it carried inside."

The electric stove does not have to be fed kindling or the form of coals, but is operated by a simple button, which turns on the heat and the light at one and the same time. This stove is very fast on its feet, and it is a painful sight for a frugal husband to watch it turn-over and devour waste and kilowatts in a reckless and profligate manner. It does not cost any more to cook a thick beefsteak on an electric stove than it does to buy the steak in the first place, and after the oven has become thoroughly heated it will remain in that condition so long as nobody wants to use the heat.

If some way could be devised to turn back the surplus heat generated by an electric stove into the meter, and get credit at the end of the month, more people would use it without a sense of dark, chilly foreboding.

"Maybe you're not afraid, Mario. I don't believe you are. But I am afraid for you. I wish you'd go away."

"You love me!" Her hands lifted in protest; he caught and enclosed them both in his own. His shadowed face and eyes grew luminous; his smooth accents vibrated with emotion. "You love me, Leonora—at last."

He was drawing her steadily toward him, all her strength seemed to have ebbed from her limbs. There was madness in the beating of her heart, madness mounting like mist into her brain. Now she was in his arms, and was a dwelling of some pretentiousness, but now was dedicated to the decadent uses of—according to its painted signboard—"Ristori's Table d'Hoté—Dinner with Wine 70c—Lunches 50c."

In the corridor at the head of the first flight she turned to the back of the house and laid a confident hand upon the knob of the furthest door. It turned, but the door was stubborn. With a movement of impatience she knocked the panels with a triple knock of peculiar timing. A burst of voices in the closed room died away, a heavy tread became audible, a key grated, the door swung open. She went in, nodding lightly to the man who had admitted her, and, finding herself under the concentrated regard of eleven pairs of eyes, paused in the middle of the floor and struck a split-second pose.

"Good evening, folks! Pipe my new rag!" The allusion that answered her was broken after a little by Red Carnahan, who said heartily: "Hello, kid. Sit down."

Ignoring his invitation to an empty chair on his right, she dropped, her pose but remained. There she had dinner, lifting her brows a little and reviewing the company with quizzical eyes.

"You love me, Leonora—at last."

Stung by realization of what had happened, she struggled to be free.

"I don't know—perhaps—yes, I will. But not tomorrow—not right away."

"Why?"

"Let me go—I'll tell you." He released her. She stepped back, shaking with fear and fright, looking tremulously up and down the street.

"I can't marry you just yet. I've got to break with Red so he won't know it wasn't him that broke with me. And I've got other things to do—things I can't tell you about. Marie—things I've got to tend to before I can marry you. But you can trust me: I've promised, and I will, as soon as ever I can . . ."

Her voice quavered, and she thrust out her hands, fending off his arms.

"Please don't kiss me again; please let me go now. If anybody saw us and told Red . . ."

He made a sign of submission. "As you will, as he is, Leonora. I will see you again—when?"

"Tomorrow. I'll give you a ring about noon and fix to meet you—up-town somewhere, I guess. Now—I've got to run. Good-night . . . dear."

He uttered in resignation: "Good-night."

With a flickering smile of tenderness she turned and left him, her slight, young figure ditting swiftly through the shadows. Beneath the lamp at the far street corner, she turned, looked back, saw him motionless, and then had left him, surmised his look of longing, and, waving a hand, ran on, cold fear in her heart, contending with cold fear.

For now she had done it, and there'd be the devil to pay. But it couldn't be helped. Though hell and heaven were leagued against them, she would go through. She always did, once she got started. And with Marie, she knew, it was as with her: he too would go through, now he knew she loved him, though Red and all the world besides should try to stop him.

At length, well out of her course, she stopped, imposed coherence upon her thoughts, got her bearings, and started on—a-ways, in a cooling mood, constraining herself to forget Marie and concentrate upon the business that waited for her at her destination.

But the self outside herself, of whose constant company she was wholly ignorant, never ceased to years back toward that gallant, lonely figure they two had left behind in the quiet by-street.

feels abounding each in turn and getting no satisfaction; for each in turn averted his gaze with an expression more or less sheepish and disconcerted, till but Red, Harry the Nut, and Inez, the third and only other woman present.

"Well? What's it all about? Start something, somebody—why don't you? If anything's gone wrong, let me know. I guess I've got as much right as anybody—"

The Nut shrugged and with supercilious nonchalance selected another cigarette from the flat gold case he was fond of displaying; a circumstance which, according to one's bias, might or might not be taken as indicating that the case had been honestly come by. Inez seemed eager to speak, but Red forestalled her.

"It's like this, kid; Eddie's been pitched."

The fact that the person in question, Eddie, under indictment for burglary, had been the one to whom the case, consisting of large soles by price of his loyal association, might have been thought enough to rob him an announcement of some of its staggering quality. But to Leonora it came as a genuine shock, and she showed it unmistakably.

"No!" she exclaimed, and added a most unkindlike phrase of mixed indignation and regret. "Somebody's squandered."

"That's just it," Inez affirmed significantly. "I wonder who?"

Leonora needed a little time before she was able to couple the thimly veiled animosity of the gathering to which she had been sensible ever since entering, with the tone employed by Inez, something which this last would ordinarily have lacked and easily to attempt. Then immediately her temper grew incandescent.

"Meaning me?"

"Why, hon!" Inez drawled, rounding her eyes—"whatever made you think that?"

But she committed the grievous error of trying to exchange with Red a look of malicious understanding which Leonora intercepted instantly.

"Never you mind what made me think that," she said in cold rage; "I get you; I ain't blind and dumb. But take it from me, Inez: you chuck it and chuck it quick. If I get one more word out of you, trying to make me out a stupid pigeon—if I ever see you look that way at Red again—your people'll have no kick coming."

"Oh, is that so?" Inez demanded with mistaken pertness. "What do you think you'll do?"

"Ick you," Leonora informed her savagely—"Ick you till all you'd need will be a wood gimmon lined with satin and trimmed with tin. And you know Ick you too."

Her small, complete fist struck the table. She clutched it closed in it.

"Easy, kid; don't run away with the wrong idea."

"I won't. Don't worry." She wrenched her hand free. "I'm no simpleton; I've got more brains than the rest of this push lumped together—that goes for you, too, Red. And I won't stand for insinuations from nobody—not from that rotten little cat that's trying to make up to you—she's always jealous of me—or anybody else. You . . .!" For a moment words proved inadequate. She sat in a tense posture, white with fury, breathing quickly; and even Red avoided her eyes.

"Ab, all we make me sick! Eddie gets pinched—God I know how!—and you all fix on me as the squander because I happen to be a few minutes late tonight? Why, you poor fish!"

She checked abruptly, noting another questionable gap in the company.

"Why pick on me? Where's Leo Blandy? Why isn't he here? If being late's proof of squealing—he's later than me!"

"That ain't all, hon," English Additions drawled coolly.

Their glances met and clashed, the girl's hot with challenge and resentment, the man's cold with malice. For the first time she recognized in this creature an enemy. Then her supercilious malice, grapping with the prediction of how to confute his implicit accusation, experienced a dash of memory followed by a lightning-like stroke of irritation.

"I'd you want to know who squealed," she suggested deliberately, "why don't you give Harry the office? Ask him what he does with all his time, where he puts the clothes for all his swell clothes, who he talks to when he's hanging up to the bars of the big hotel. Ask him why the cops always look the other way when they see him coming, why he ain't never pinched?"

With an oath Harry thrust back his chair which was occupied with a cramp and jumped up, guilt stamped upon his countenance of sudden pallor, glinting fearfully in his furtive little eyes. But in the same instant the door—left negligently unlocked after the entrance of Leonora—was hastily opened and slammed.

The first to identify the man who had slipped in and now stood trembling with the key, English Addee cried out in shrill dismay: "Leo!" The company turned simultaneously and with confused cries and questions got to its feet.

WINTER NEGLIGEE

A bit warmer than robes of summer comes this breakfast coat of colorful brocaded satin. Vermilion, pale green and a thread of gold mingle to make up the pattern of it. Lining and piping are of green crepe de chino. Little squares cut out of the sleeves are rather charmingly fancy. It is a slip-over affair with sleeves and body all in one piece.

padding from the queen of England. I tell you, I saw you."

"That's another lie!" But the steadiness of Harry's eyes was disconcerting. Unquestionably he believed his assertions. Leonora's tongue tripped over the denial: "I wasn't . . .

"Well, then, tell us where you were at four o'clock yesterday afternoon," Addee suggested blandly.

At that hour Leonora had been in a Second Avenue motion picture theater with Mario: an initiation to which she could not possibly confess. Perceptibly she lost assurance.

"None of your d—business."

"Better tell 'em, kid," Red counseled sneakingly. "You got to come clean."

"Like h—! I have!" Once more the names of ruga leapt high. "I don't owe this gang anything, much less an account of everything I do. The shoe's on the other foot. You all know me, you all know I'm on the level. Most of you do up the Five today if it wasn't for me—and you know that. . . .

"H—! For do you think I'm on the level? If my brains didn't work for you, you'd know what to do and how to get away with it without the bologna tumbling! Who planned the raid on Blatole's hotel shop? Did any of you get pinched for that? Who figured out how to get those bonds away from the Chemical Trust's messenger? Was anybody lagged for that? . . . And because I take the trouble not to lead 's couple gams right up in you tonight—and because the Nut saw somebody that looked like me all dolled up on Fifth Avenue yesterday—or thinks he did?"

"It was you, all right," Harry affirmed coolly.

Their glances met and clashed, the girl's hot with challenge and resentment, the man's cold with malice. For the first time she recognized in this creature an enemy. Then her supercilious malice, grapping with the prediction of how to confute his implicit accusation, experienced a dash of memory followed by a lightning-like stroke of irritation.

A "FAIR PRACTICE" PLAN ADOPTED BY W. VA. PRODUCERS

To Insure Supply of Coal at Less Than Half Open Market Prices

TO SECURE CO-OPERATION

Between the Department of Justice and the Operators' Territory to Be Divided into Districts for Exemption of the Accepted Plan.

Coal at the mines at less than half what it will bring in the open market is the proposition of the "fair practice" plan, adopted by the organization of Northern West Virginia operators, which has decided upon an effort to supply the coal needs in the Northern West Virginia judicial district, which takes in about half of the state, and includes the northern and eastern panhandles.

For purposes of facilitating the plan, which is to secure co-operation between the Department of Justice and the coal operators, a division of the territory into three districts has been made, of which Morgan, Berkeley and Jefferson count are one; Hancock, Brooke, Ohio, Marshall, and Wood, Pleasants, Tyler, Ritchie and Wirt counties a third district.

"The endeavor will be to provide such fuel as is necessary for private family or industrial use in Northern West Virginia at the same prices at which coal is now delivered on contracts—$5 to $6 a ton J. o. b. railroad cars at the mines," says E. Drennen of Elkins, chairman of the committee.

"The complaints so far entered have been fully considered and last spring only a part of what they needed and sought to have the balance provided at the contract price. When unable to do this there were complaints. In every instance so far the coal has been provided at a price satisfactory to the consumer."

The committee consists of E. Drennen, chairman, representing operators in the Grafton and Dilling sections; J. C. McKinley, representing operators in the Wheeling section; Senator J. L. Bradford, representing operators in the Morgantown and Kingwood section; A. L. White of Clarksburg; and C. H. Jenkins, of Fairmont, representing their respective sections; Douglas Gorman, of Baltimore, representing the Upper Potomac section, and C. D. Robinson, of Fairmont, who has been elected to the committee at large.

The personnel of the committee represents managers of the largest coal operations in Northern West Virginia.

The committee has had meetings at Washington, Martinsburg, Fairmont and Baltimore. It met at Wheeling on

PUT FIGHTING QUALITIES IN YOUR BLOOD

If You Are Pale and Weak Without Ambition, You Need a Tonic

TRY TAKING PEPTO-MANGAN

Rich, Red Blood Fights Off Disease and Keeps You Well and Enables You to Work with Pleasure.

Serious sickness often comes when you least suspect. You may feel a little over-tired. You haven't been exposed to contagion, yet all of a sudden you are flat on your back and in for a siege of sickness.

Your blood did not have fighting qualities. It was weak and thin. Your vitality and powers of resistance were low.

When you overtax you use up energy. Your blood is driven to do more than it can. It becomes clogged with waste. The waste acts like poison. Disease germs get in your blood and dominate.

Don't let yourself get run down. Take that good tonic, Pepto-Mangan. It makes rich, red blood that will resist and rout out disease germs.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. Comes in either liquid or tablet form. Both have the same effect.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Guide's." Ask for it by the name and be sure the full name, "Guide's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package.—Adv.

THE SOISSON

"PASSION'S PLAYGROUND"—A stirring story of romance, losses, and gains at Monte Carlo, with Katherine McDonald, is being presented today.

The call of Monte Carlo was too strong for Mary Grant, novice in a Scottish convent, in whose veins flows the blood of a gambler and runaway mother. Despite the warning of her friend, Molly Maxwell, who pointed to the fate of Marie Grant, a third convent, who had run away from the convent with a married man, Mary ran into the call when she came into her inheritance at the age of 24.

Among this large number is Mrs. Margaret Waring of 822 Oakmont avenue, Oakmont, Pa., who while discussing her experience said:

"If everybody knew how much good Tanlac has done me there isn't a one who wouldn't think just as I do, that only it's worth its weight in gold. I have taken four bottles but besides getting relief from troubles that come near wrecking my health entirely I have gained twenty pounds in weight."

"Before I took Tanlac I was in a awful run-down condition. My stomach was so upset that I couldn't eat anything but what would sour and blow me up until I could scarcely breathe.
